The course looks at how consumer demand for green homes is increasing and provides a detailed accounting of how high performance features work. The course prepares real estate professionals by providing advice and resources to help homeowners improve the performance of their homes — from low-cost fixes and DIY projects, to retrofitting and replacing systems, to big budget remodeling projects and new constructions.

covers the distinguishing characteristics that make a high-performance home

Ultimately, this course will show you how to apply green knowledge to enhance your business while also helping to create a more sustainable, healthy world.
