FHA '90-DAY FLIPPING' WAIVER PG. 4 SPEEDS SALE OF VACANT HOMES

LOAN CONTINGENCY STRATEGIES IN THE CURRENT MARKET

BY KATHY MEHRINGER, SRAR RISK MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

As the market continues to move under our feet, loan availability remains uncertain. The new Federal Lending Regulations impacting the purchase of primary residences and second homes in many cases will alter the timing of our transactions. The Home Valuation Code of Conduct and other appraisal challenges impact our transactions in a large way.

We are now afforded an opportunity to take a hard look at how the loan contingency and removal process is handled in our transactions. Clearly this is the time to assess the way we conduct business and adjust our practices, where necessary to adapt to the current trends.

The Loan Contingency: As you know, paragraph 2. I. Loan Contingency Removal states: "(i) Within 17 (or specified time) days after acceptance, Buyer shall, as specified in paragraph 14, remove the loan contingency or cancel this agreement; OR (ii) (checked) __ the loan contingency shall remain in effect until the designated loans are funded."

In the past, for the most part, the time period for removal of the loan contingency has been set at the 17 day default period. Although, some buyers modify the default period making the window of time longer or shorter depending on their personal circumstances. Current market conditions necessitate a re-examination of the process and suggest, at the very least, that we consider alternatives.

From a listing agent's perspective, the need for seller counseling regarding this issue is of paramount importance. Not only does it set forth our value as knowledgeable professionals, it prevents failed expectations and misunderstandings during the transaction. The seller must understand what factors are weighed by buyers in the decision-making process and how those decisions affect the seller. In addition to counseling, listing agents must be diligent in the review of offers that are presented on our listings. I say this because, especially when using WINForms, it is easy to miss the little check mark in the box at the very end of the last sentence in 2 I; when that box is checked the loan contingency does not have to be removed until the loan has actually funded. The consequences to the seller are serious, and must be explained thoroughly at the time the offer is negotiated.

Now let's look at this from a buyer's point of view. Would a reasonable buyer be comfortable, based on current loan availability and challenges, removing his/her loan contingency on day 17? Or at any time prior to actually knowing the loan was funded and that the appraisal process was complete. It is our responsibility to thoroughly review options and articulate the benefits and/or risks.

Please realize that I am not advocating a position, simply pointing out the need to counsel our clients, both buyers and sellers, competently and carefully as to the this highly charged component of the contract negotiations.

Most buyers and sellers would agree that a transaction should be fair and equitable to all parties; to that end we must truly fulfill our role as trusted advisors. Our responsibility is to point out the choices, articulate the pros and cons of each, and then permit our clients to make the final decision.

It all begins with Agency:

- 1. The listing agent must provide the Disclosure Regarding Real Estate Agency Relationships ("AD") prior to the seller entering into a listing agreement (CA. Civ. Code 2079.14(a)) The AD will signed by the listing agent and the seller.
- 2. The selling agent must provide the AD to the buyer, at no point later than, prior to the execution of buyer's offer (CA. Civ. Code 2079.14 (d)) The AD will be signed by the selling agent and the buyer.
- 3. The selling agent must also provide the AD to the seller (UNLESS THE SELLING AND LISTING FIRM ARE THE SAME) prior to presenting the seller with an offer (CA. Civ. Code 2079.14 (b)) The AD will be signed by the seller and the selling agent.
- Good news: In November 2009 the California Association of Realtors® revised the AD (parenthetical title "Selling Firm to Seller") so that when #1c above applies buyer and seller may sign the same AD.

LOW INVENTORY, CONFUSION OVER TAX CREDIT, SLOW JANUARY HOME SALES

Resale prices continued to firm up during January, but a combination of factors - a low inventory, confusion over the federal tax credit, and seasonal forces - yielded a slowdown in sales of single-family homes throughout the San Fernando Valley, the Southland Regional Association of Realtors reported.

Sales typically are light during the Winter months, but the 4.6 percent drop in single-family sales at a time when buyers are scrambling over each other for any property priced under $500,000, had to be due to other factors. A total of 494 homes changed owners last month compared to 518 a year ago.

"The low number of sales had very much to do with the $8,000 federal tax credit for first-time home buyers, which everyone thought was set to expire at the end of November," said Patti Petralia, president of the Southland Regional Association of Realtors. "The credit has since been extended to the end of April and expanded to include repeat owners, but the original scheduled deadline dissuaded many buyers from going forward."

Yet even that doesn't fully explain what turned out to be one of the lowest monthly tallies since the recovery took hold, Petralia said. Sales had been steadily increasing since hitting this cycle's low-water mark of 323 closed escrows in January 2008. Jim Link, the Association's chief executive officer, noted that the extremely limited inventory of homes listed for sale also combined to drag sales down.

"Throw in the fact that distressed properties and short sales continue to haunt the market, while it's still taking too long for lenders to decide if they will accept an offer, and it's easy to see why sales slowed during January," Link said. "We expect to see activity pick up as Spring approaches and lenders further improve their response times."

Pending home sales - a measure of future sales activity - were up 6.1 percent from a year ago.

There were only 2,776 homes and condominiums listed for sale at the end of January, down 41.6 percent from the 4,750 active listings of a year ago.

The Association's current-pace-of-sales-to-inventory index - a measure of the fundamental health of the local market - stood at a 4.0-month supply, a number that in a normal market would tip the balance of power in favor of sellers.

"The pent-up demand for housing certainly adds pressure on prices," Link said. "Yet the normal rules will not apply until more traditional sellers list their homes for sale and the market works through the inventory distressed properties, which still represent a majority of the active listings."

Two years ago January, when sales were low and inventory higher, the index hit its peak for this recession with a 16.2-month supply and some 6,928 properties listed for sale. The ideal is to have a 5- to 6-month inventory, which comes closer to a balanced market

A total of 204 condominiums closed escrow during January, up 22.9 percent from a year ago, but down 13.6 percent from the December tally. Condos also suffer from a limited inventory even as sales have recovered at a slower pace as buyers focused on the unprecedented opportunities to purchase single-family homes.

The median price of homes and condos continued to firm up during January. Single-family homes sold last month had a median price of $380,000, up 8.6 percent from a year ago. The single-family median has been steadily increasing since dropping to the low point of $339,900 in February 2009.

SANTA CLARITA VALLEY HOME SALES LAG DURING JANUARY

The resale market in the Santa Clarita Valley stalled during January as a popular federal tax credit for first-time buyers that appeared to be ending plus a depleted inventory of homes for sale combined to limit buyer options, the Southland Regional Association of Realtors reported.

A total of 137 single-family homes closed escrow during January, down 6.8 percent from a year ago. Realtors also closed escrow on 55 condo sales last month, down 38.2 percent from a year ago.

"A tight inventory has plagued Santa Clarita for months," said Andrew Walter, president of the Association's Santa Clarita Valley Division. "Plus, buyers who in order to afford a home needed the $8,000 federal tax credit for first-time buyers were scrambling over each other to get into escrow before the credit was set to expire in November."

That deadline eventually was extended to April 30 - and a tax credit of $6,500 offered to repeat buyers - but by the time the new deadline had been announced, some buyers had already left the market and are only recently started jumping back in, Walter said.

He expected another wave of closed escrows to begin appearing in the coming months. Pending escrows, a measure of future resale activity, support that belief. The number of open escrows was up 6.1 percent from the same period a year ago.

The inventory continued to decline during January with the 795 active listings off a whopping 41.8 percent from a year ago when there were 1,365 active listings.

At the current pace of sales, the inventory represents a 4.1-month supply - below the 5-to 6-month supply that represents a balanced market. A year ago the index showed a 5.8-month supply.

"While there are still many clouds on the horizon, Realtors believe the housing recovery will continue through this year," said Jim Link, the Association's chief executive officer.

"We're cautiously optimistic that the worst is past," he said, "and that we'll see more traditional sellers enter the market this Spring, even as distressed properties and short sales work their way through the market."

Link and Walter noted that the high percentage of short sales and delays in getting approvals from lenders remain a drag on the market.

"Even though some of the major banks are finally developing a fast-track system" Walter said, "the extended time frame to successfully negotiate a short sale is seriously affecting average escrow periods. Instead, of the normal 30- to 45-day escrows, when it comes to short sales it's taking lenders longer than 90 days to decide."

The median price of homes sold last month was $399,900, up 1.0 percent from a year ago, but off 4.2 percent from the December median. It was the first time that the median slipped below $405,000 after four consecutive months of being above that benchmark. The median has been trending higher since December of 2008 when it hit the low mark for this cycle of $385,000.

The condo median of $235,000 was up 14.6 percent from a year ago and 4.4 percent higher than December. The low point for condos came in March 2009 with a median of $199,500. It has been above $218,000 every month since, including one month when the condo median came in at $250,000.

FHA '90-DAY FLIPPING' WAIVER SPEEDS SALE OF VACANT HOMES

BY PATTI PETRALIA, PRESIDENT, AND DAVID WALKER, SRAR MEDIA CONSULTANT

In an action designed to stabilize home values and get buyers into vacant homes as quickly as possible, the federal department of Housing and Urban Development recently waived a rule that prevented some buyers from using FHA-insured loans in the purchase of distressed properties.

Actually, the waiver may have three profound impacts on the market, all with potentially far-reaching rewards:

- It will help prospective home buyers who do not have much saved in the way of a down payment;
- Encourage greater participation on the part of investors who fix up foreclosure properties;
- And, aid local communities that have a glut of bank-owned and foreclosed homes, many of which sit vacant, creating an unsightly blight that drags down the quality of a neighborhood and undermines the value of all surrounding property.

The waiver took effect Feb. 1 puts on hold for one year HUD's long-standing prohibition against flipping a foreclosed property within 90 days of its purchase.

The anti-flipping rule came about because there were too many examples of fraudulent transactions that inflated a property beyond its true market value. Co-conspirators often would have one person buy a distressed property, make cosmetic improvements, then sell an inflated price to another player in the con, who would quickly default, sticking the FHA with a fore-closed house and a loss to its insurance fund. The con artists then would move on to another property.

FHA commissioner David H. Stevens believes rules are in place that will prevent fraudulent activity while speeding the sale of renovated houses to first-time buyers. Investors will be more likely to get involved with the 90-day rule waived, fix up the property, and sell it to buyers who will now have access to FHA financing, which offers 3.5 percent down payments. Without the waiver, buyers would be forced to come up with conventional financing, which is more difficult to secure and typically requires a down payment of at least 10 percent. Some buyers may even be able to scoop up the $8,000 federal tax credit, so long as a purchase is signed by April 30 and closed by June 30.

Stevens hopes that two key restrictions will protect buyers and the FHA: First, all transactions must be arm's length, with no interest among any of the participants; and, secondly, price increases must be modest and justifiable, with special rules and extensive documentation requirements kicking in if the resale price is 20 percent above the acquisition price.

"This policy change will help to sell properties that may otherwise remain vacant for up to 90 days," Stevens said, "while offering affordable housing options to buyers wishing to use FHA-insured financing."

LOW INVENTORY...

Likewise, the condominium median price of $215,000 was up 13.2 percent. It, too, has been rising since its low of $185,000 last May.

Petralia said the health of the market greatly depends on what lenders do in the coming months.

"We need a streamlined process that ensures that short sales close with 90 days of submission to lenders," Petralia said. "What would help the process is legislation to allow loan servicers broader authority to approve short sales on behalf of investors."

While foreclosures generally close escrow within a reasonable time frame, Petralia said, "it often takes six months or longer for short sales to close."

When a lender takes longer than three months to decide, she said, "buyers become frustrated and walk, the property's condition deteriorates, and the overall value declines."

Petralia hoped that the recent HUD waiver making FHA-insured loans available to homes purchased by investors and resold with 90 days will further stabilize the market by helping buyers with a low down payment get into vacant homes before distressed properties become a blight on the community.

"Too often it still takes six months or longer to close escrows," Petralia said. "That's an improvement from a short while ago, but it is imperative that we have even greater cooperation."

AFFORDABILITY IMPROVES

64% CAN AFFORD ENTRY-LEVEL HOME

The percentage of households that could afford to buy an entry-level home in California was 64 percent in the fourth quarter of 2009, compared with 61 percent for the same period a year ago, according to a report released Wednesday by the California Association of Realtors.

The California Association of Realtors. C.A.R.'s First-time Buyer Housing Affordability Index measures the percentage of households that can afford to purchase an entry-level home in California. It is the most fundamental measure of housing well-being for first-time buyers in the state.

The minimum household income needed to purchase an entry-level home at $257,940 in California in the fourth quarter of 2009 was $44,100, based on an adjustable interest rate of 4.5 percent and assuming a 10 percent down payment.

First-time buyers typically purchase a home equal to 85 percent of the prevailing median price. The monthly payment including taxes and insurance was $1,470 for the fourth quarter of 2009.

At $44,100, the minimum qualifying income was 4 percent lower than a year earlier when households needed $45,900 to qualify for a loan on an entry-level home. Home prices remained below peak levels, resulting in an improvement in housing affordability compared with the previous year.

At 84 percent, the High Desert region was the most affordable area in the state. The San Luis Obispo County region was the least affordable in the state at 48 percent, followed by the San Francisco Bay region and the Santa Barbara area, both at 50 percent.

Affordability nationwide is considerably higher than in California. The national affordability index stood at 77 percent with an entry-level home costing $146,970. That comes with a monthly payment, including taxes and insurance, of $840 and a minimum qualifying income of $25,200. In California, only the High Desert, Sacramento County, and the Riverside/San Bernardino region — all hard-hit by the recession — had a higher affordability index.

But of those three, only the High Desert's entry-level price of $103,130 came in lower. It had a monthly payment of $590 and a minimum qualifying income of $17,700.

Throughout Los Angeles County, C.A.R. said the affordability index stood at 53 percent, with an entry-level price of $299,190, a monthly payment of $1,520 and a minimum qualifying income of $51,300.
