Old Fashioned Cashier's Check a Solid Safeguard Against Wire Fraud

Wiring money when a home is about to change owners is fast and convenient ... just ask the crooks who every year rip off hundreds of people throughout Greater Los Angeles.

At stake could be tens of thousands or even hundreds if thousands of dollars, said Edward Navarro. In one instance, he said, a university lost $1 million to wire fraud.

"If lost, what are you going to do? How will you get it back?" he asked. "Use of bank cashier's checks eliminates the problem. But if you do wire, then let's see what we have to do to mitigate the risk.'

Navarro is an escrow professional by day who also volunteers with the real estate team of the County of Los Angeles Sheriff's Department fraud detail in the Commercial Crimes Bureau.

He was the keynote speaker at a recent meeting held in Valencia of the Southland Regional Association of Realtors' risk management committee.

Navarro said victims of the more than 500 real estate wire fraud cases the Sheriff investigates each year have about 36 hours to discover the con and seek immediate assistance. Here's how it works: A con artist phishes for real estate pros with an attachment that, if clicked, inserts a bot in the computer that notifies the thief if it spots vital information, such as contact info and when an escrow is expected to close.

The thief then swoops in via email, disguised as the real estate professional, to tell a buyer to send money to a different bank.

Funds misdirected to a felon's bank account can be ordered held if law enforcement and a judge act quickly.

After 36 hours, Navarro said, most likely the money is out of the country, off shore ... gone!

Here are tips to prevent wire fraud:

• Real estate professionals need to avoid using unsecured wireless systems to convey vital client and financial information. That includes most coffee shops—a favorite office alternative.

- Update anti-virus programs weekly. Cons quickly adapt, working around any fire wall.
- Consider using fax instead of email. Phones lines could be tapped, but faxes generally will be more secure. Texting is less risky, too.

- Change passwords often at least every three months, but preferably more frequently.
 - · Call to verify all transactions, but especially any last-minute changes to wiring instructions. • Importantly, every

- real estate office needs to create a tracking system: confirm everything, check on departure and arrival of funds.
- · Create an emergency plan, what to do if money vanishes.
- · If hit, immediately contact police or the Sheriff and the FBI. Navarro said the Sheriff is creating a strike task force that can have a warrant delivered to a bank ordering it not to release funds.

• Consider obtaining cyber crime insurance.

"You've got to be aware," Navarro said. "They are always attacking you."

VALLEY MEDIAN HOME PRICE CRACKS RECORD

SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

The median price of homes that closed escrow during March throughout the San Fernando Valley set a record high $671,500, the Southland Regional Association of Realtors reported.

The median was up 13.3 percent from a year ago March. It also was 2.5 percent higher than the prior record of $655,000 set in June 2007, the height of that decade's boom housing

For most of 2016 the home median price was stuck on a plateau in the low $600,000 range

Buyers able to pay the most get the prize, yet the region sees rents rising rapidly and workers with fewer housing options.

Southern California remains a draw thanks to its fine weather, access to mountains and beaches, and vibrant economy, Starczyk said, yet few newcomers appreciate > that housing is so much more expensive than the rest of the nation, that options for new construction are few, and that local communities resist higher density.

> The median price of homes sold may have set a new record, but sales remained dramatically lower than a decade ago.

MINUS DISCRIMINATION

BY NANCY STARCZYK, PRESIDENT, AND DAVID R. WALKER SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Anyone seeking housing whether buying or renting—has a right to expect that housing will be available without discrimination or limitation.

That right extends to everyone regardless of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin.

With every right, comes responsibilities: Home sellers or landlords have a responsibility not to discriminate in the sale, rental and financing of property. Under the law, a home seller or landlord cannot establish discrimina- tory terms or conditions in the purchase or rental, deny that housing is available, or advertise that the property is available only to certain people.

Home seekers have the right to expect:

• Housing in any price

range made available without discrimination;

- Equal professional service;
- The opportunity to consider a broad range of housing choices;

- No discriminatory limitations communities or locations of on housing;
- · No discrimination in the financing,

appraising, or insuring of housing

• Reasonable accommodations in rules.

practices and procedures for persons with disabilities;

- Non-discriminatory terms and conditions for the sale, rental, financing, or insuring of a dwelling;
- To be free from harassment or intimidation for exercising fair housing rights.

Real estate licensees are prohibited by law from discriminating, but Realtors willingly take on added duties. Realtors agree to conduct business in accordance with a strict code of ethics, which includes firm support for equal opportunity in housing.

Local associations of Realtors have a responsibility to enforce the code of ethics through professional standards procedures and corrective action.

BUYERS RUSH FOR CONDOS, PUSH SALES UP 45%

SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Buyers throughout the Santa Clarita Valley during March snapped up condominiums with the 120 closed escrows up 44.6 percent over a year ago and 62.2 percent ahead of February, the Southland Regional Association of Realtors reported Tuesday

The month-tomonth increase reflects seasonal patterns, but the last three months have seen strong activity in condominium resales.

"Clients tell me their push for condominiums is simple—condos are more affordable than singlefamily homes," said Martin "Marty" Kovacs, chairman of the Santa Clarita Valley Division of the Southland Regional Association of Realtors. "And higher priced homes make qualifying for a loan much more difficult."

The median price of condominiums sold during March in Santa Clarita came in at $345,000, which was up 4.5 percent over a year ago and 1.8 percent ahead of February.

For comparison, the median price of single family homes in Santa Clarita that changed owners during March was $535,000, up 2.9 percent above March 2016.

Prices throughout Santa Clarita appear to have hit a plateau and remain below record highs by double-digit numbers: the March singlefamily home median price was 16.8 percent below the record high of $643,000, set in April 2006; and the March condominium median came in 13.1 percent below the record of $397,000, which was set in January 2006.

A total of 203 singlefamily homes changed owners during March. That was unchanged from a year ago, yet up 53.8 percent from February, a dramatic leap in line with seasonal increases.

Home and condominium sales have been hampered by a severely limited inventory of properties listed for sale. There were a mere 414 active listings in Santa Clarita at the end of March on the Association's Multiple Listing

That was down 19.4 percent from a year ago and represented a 1.3-month supply at the current pace of sales.

Inventory typically increases as the peak homebuying summer season approaches, yet the March inventory, while up from February, was closer to listings reported in March 2013.

For comparison, the record high monthly total was set in September 2006 with 2,630 active listings.

Pending escrows—a measure of future sales activity—totaled 356 open escrows. That was down 8.7 percent from a year ago.

Distressed sales represent a minor part of the local resale market.

Of the 323 home and condominium sale reported during March, 95.4 percent were standard sales involving traditional buyers and sellers. There were 10 foreclosure-related transactions, percent share of the market, and four short sales, for a 1.2 percent market share

the record low monthly tally of 312

March Sales Up 2%, Median Price Hits Record $671.500

The median price of homes that closed escrow during March throughout the San Fernando Valley set a record high of $671,500, the Southland Regional Association of Realtors reported Tuesday.

The median rose 13.3 percent from a year ago. It also was 2.5 percent higher than the prior record of $655,000 set in June 2007, the height of last decade's boom housing market.

"It's age old supply and demand at work," said Nancy Starczyk, president of the 9,600-member Southland Regional Association of Realtors. "Demand for housing is high and buyers outnumber the supply of homes listed for sale, which leads to dreaded bidding wars.

"Southern California remains a draw thanks to its fine weather, access to mountains and beaches, and vibrant economy," Starczyk said. "Yet few newcomers appreciate that housing is so much more expensive here than the rest of the nation, that options for new construction are limited, and that local communities resist

The 478 closed escrows were up 1.7 percent from a year ago and, following seasonal patterns, 48.9 percent higher than this February. Realtors also assisted the sale of 183 condominiums during March, down 3.2 percent from a year ago, yet 24.5 percent higher than February. The median price of condominiums came in at $395,000, up 3.4 percent from 12 months ago yet off 1.0 percent from February. The March condominium median price was 4.8 percent below the record high of $415,000 set in May 2009.

The inventory of properties listed for sale on the Association's Multiple Listing Service rose 5.7 percent from the February total, which was the lowest in five years. Yet the 1,165 active listings were down 12.7 percent from March 2016, representing a mere 1.8-month supply at the current pace

A 6-month supply was the standard over 30 years, but since 2012 the supply rarely has risen close to a 4-month supply, typically hovered just above 2 months, and occasionally, as happened in March, dropped below a 2-month inventory.

March 2017 Single-family home sales increased 1.7 percent over a year ago even as the median price increased 13.3 percent to a record high $671,500, beating the prior record set in June 2007.

EMPLOYERS SAY TALENT LOST DUE TO HOUSING COST

Major Los Angeles employers believe the region's escalating home prices are hindering seniorlevel recruitment and erecting barriers to attracting and retaining top talent, a recently released study found.

Indeed, high housing costs are deterring top talent from entering the Los Angeles job market, and leading to higher costs in recruiting and retaining employees, according to the survey released by Raphael Bostic, a USC Price School of Public Policy professor and the newly appointed head of the Atlanta Federal Reserve.

Bostic led a team of USC researchers in surveying major L.A. employers accounting for nearly 200,000 jobs in key sectors including utilities, healthcare, education, government, engineering and finance.

The resulting report, "The Affordable Housing Crisis in Los Angeles: An Employer Perspective," released in partnership with the Los Angeles Business Council, focuses on how the high cost of housing in the region has affected employers and puts forth key recommendations.

"This study shows that high housing costs are burdening our leading employers, either by having to develop special hiring packages, or subsidizing transportation and relocation costs,"

Bostic said. "Though we have yet to see a critical mass of businesses priced out of the region, this is an area of concern."

Nearly 60 percent of employers surveyed cited the region's high cost of living as impacting employee retention, and 75 percent cited housing costs specifically as an area of concern.

The impact of high housing costs is most apparent when employers try to recruit top talent: 64 percent of employers report that they include cost of living when negotiating hiring packages for high-level employees.

To address the strain on L.A.'s limited housing supply, the report recommends examining successful employer-sponsored housing projects, such as the LAUSD affordable housing apartments completed in 2016. It also makes a strong case for investing in higher-density housing at a range of prices near key transit centers.

Other recommendations included: reducing parking requirements for new development, identifying single-story buildings housing projects, such as the LAUSD affordable housing apartments completed in 2016. It also makes a strong case for investing in higher-density housing at a range of prices near key transit centers.

Other recommendations included: reducing parking requirements for new development, identifying single-story buildings that could be modified to support housing, exploring innovative transportation solutions, and encouraging employers to engage with community and government groups around housing construction projects that could benefit their workers.

"This report provides compelling evidence for the need of well-designed, affordable homes connected to quality transportation, education and jobs," said Jacqueline Waggoner, vice president and Southern California market leader of Enterprise Community Partners, Inc.

"The burden of high housing costs not only impacts our quality of life, it threatens our economic foundation."

The problem is not unique to Los Angeles — nearly every metropolitan area is burdened by high housing costs.

Nationwide, more than 10 million households pay more than half their income in housing costs.

Besides impacting employers' bottom lines, housing costs negatively affect employee's satisfaction and productivity. Pushed out of housing markets closer to jobs, workers have to undergo long and taxing commutes.

Nearly every employer surveyed reported that more than 25 percent of their employees spent more than 90 minutes getting to and from work.

ABCs—and Ds—of Building a Relationship Based on Trust

The challenge for every Realtor, indeed every real estate professional, is to forge a strong, lasting relationship with clients based on one thing and one thing only — trust.

"Let's simplify the entire idea of risk management," said Kathy Mehringer, one of four members of the Southland Regional Association of Realtors' Risk Management Committee. "If we're good communicators, if we do our job, if clients like us, then usually clients will be happy with us.

"But trust is something we have to earn every day and with every client," she said.

That's why Mehringer offered what she called the "ABCs of real estate" and attorney
Steven Spile, who is the committee chair, took it a step farther with a list of "Ds."

First, Merhinger said, "assume nothing." Never assume any client understands the real estate process. How could a buyer or seller fully appreciate what a real estate professional knows, has learned and experienced through the course of dozens or hundreds of transactions? Clients are unlikely to truly understand the meaning of "due diligence" or what it means if a contingency is removed.

"They have to understand the whole picture," she said. "And don't assume the agent on the other side knows what they're doing. . . . Always be prepared to do all of the work." Next, believe no one, "she said. "When the other agent tells you something, don't believe it. Believe only what's in writing. ... That's what you're supposed to do. All this verbal mumbo jumbo drives me nuts."

That transitions to Mehringer's "C," which is for Realtors to "confirm everything in writing. "That includes changes, forms, everything," she said. "I see agents getting into disputes because of what he or she said they would do. Do the ABCs and you'll be a much happier real estate agent and you'll be on your way to earning your client's trust."

Spile tacked multiple "Ds" onto Mehringer's list: discover the facts, differentiate what a licensee should or should not do, disclose all pertinent information, document everything, and be diligent in protecting a client's interests. Both stressed the need to pay special attention to social media, especially as its use becomes ubiquitous and how it relates to being a professional.

"If we're going to use email," Mehringer said, "we need to treat it as a professional means of communication." That includes using a salutation, proper punctuation, avoiding use of acronyms, and providing the full, proper name of vital documents.

"Don't assume a client knows what an acronym stand for," she said, noting that professional communication and using proper grammar not only lower the risk of conflicts and misunderstandings – plus, emails are discoverable in a legal action – but also elevate the status of the entire real estate profession.
