TORRID MARKET SHOWS SIGNS OF COOLING STATEWIDE

BY DIANE SYDELL, PRESIDENT, AND DAVID WALKER SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Despite an impressive performance in the first six months of the year, California's residential housing market's momentum appears to be moderating as a few more properties are listed for sale and rising prices push buyers to their limits.

June home sales were up 28.3 percent from a year ago, but down slightly monthtomonth, the California Association of Realtors reported recently.

With exceptional sales growth in June, the state housing market ended the first half of the year with a year-to-date increase of 33.6 percent.

Higher priced markets continued to do well while sales of lowerpriced properties remained below last year's levels.

"We're starting to see what a difference, just a slight uptick in inventory and listings can do to help lessen the buying frenzy and create a sense of normalcy," said C.A.R. President Dave Walsh. "The market is still extremely competitive, with 70 percent of homes selling above list price; however, the number of new listings increased in June, and both the share of listings with a reduced price and median reduction amount increased, giving buyers more opportunities to purchase."

California's median home price set a record high for the fourth consecutive month in June as the median price increased 0.2 percent on a month-to-month basis to $819,630 in June, up from May's $818,260. The median was up 30.9 percent from the $626,170 price recorded in June 2020. The median price in California also remained above the $800,000 benchmark for the third consecutive month.

The pace of growth in home prices appeared to be decelerating, however, as the change between May and June remained below one percent, and the increase was the smallest in the past four months.

On a year-over-year basis, the statewide median price increased more than 30 percent for the third consecutive month.

"Tight supply, low rates and the change in the mix of sales continue to be the primary factors pushing up home prices to record levels," said Jordan Levine, C.A.R. vice president and chief economist. "However, we are expecting price growth to slow from this point on as the top end of the market begins moderating."

With pending sales down for the first time in 14 months, closed sales — which have declined five out of the last six months — will likely remain lackluster as the market enters the second half of the year. Other key points from C.A.R.'s June 2021 resale housing report included:

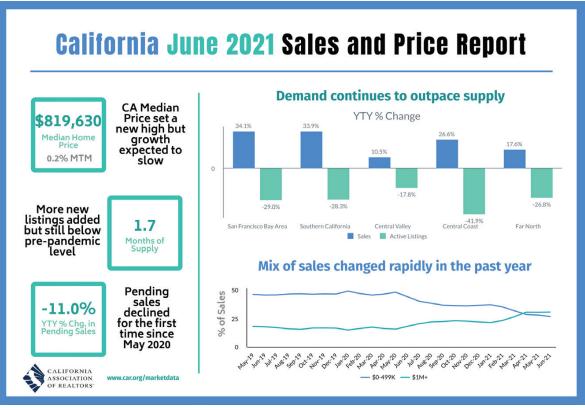

price gain of 48.1 percent in June, followed by Siskiyou, 40.5 percent, and Santa Barbara, 39.2 percent.

Twenty-five counties set new record high median prices in June. Lake had the smallest price growth of all counties with a 3.9 percent increase from June 2020.

• Higher-priced markets continued to do well while sales of lower-priced properties remained below last year's levels. The million-dollar market increased in demand by triple-digits year-over-year, with sales of homes priced $2 million and above surging 141 percent from a year ago.

Sales of homes priced below $300,000, on the other hand, continued to fall precipitously, with the year-overyear growth rate declining 48 percent in June.

Tight housing supply continues to be the primary constraining factor for sales in the lower price segment. The state has sold more homes in the million-dollar market than the sub $500,000 market in the 2nd quarter,

- At the regional level, four of the five major regions in the state set new record high median prices in June, with each region increasing by more than 20 percent from a year ago. The San Francisco Bay Area continue to grow at the fastest pace with a year-over-year gain of 35.0 percent, followed by Southern California at 30.3 percent.
- All 51 counties tracked by C.A.R. experienced price growth on a yearoveryear basis, with 47 of them reported a double-digit rate increase in median price from last year. Del Norte had the largest a condition that has not been observed in California in the past.
