Realtors Commend Gov. Newsom for Signing Housing Legislation

Dave Walsh, president of the 200,000-member California Association of Realtors, issued the following statement in response to Gov. Gavin Newsom's recent signing of three important housing bills — Senate Bill 8 (Skinner), SB 9 (Atkins) and SB 10 (Weiner) — that will make a meaningful impact on the state's housing crisis:

"Today, California took an important step toward solving our state's housing supply crisis," Walsh said. "SB 8, SB 9 and SB 10 are prudent, reasonable actions in the path forward to helping the state reach its housing goals and create greater homeownership opportunities for working Californians.

⁴California Realtors thank Gov. Gavin Newsom, Senate President pro Tem Toni Atkins, and Senators Scott Weiner and Nancy Skinner for their vision, leadership and commitment," Walsh said. "It is because of their determination that more Californians will become homeowners and reap the tremendous benefits that come with it."

REALTOR OF THE YEAR

REALTORS PICK RANA LINKA FOR TOP HONOR

BY DIANE SYDELL, PRESIDENT, AND DAVID WALKER SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Rana Linka, a 45-year veteran of the local residential real estate industry, was selected recently as the 2021 Realtor of the Year by the 10,300-member Southland Regional Association of Realtors.

"I'm a lucky person," Linka said. "I found something I love doing and I've been doing it for 45 years. I've been 58 years in a good marriage and I have a wonderful career. I'm very pleased."

The award was presented by Brian Hatkoff, the 2020 recipient of the Realtor of the≠ Year honor. Hatkoff noted that the honor is awarded to professionals who "give of themselves.

members who consistently show up to take on the challenges needed for any major professional association to succeed.

"I'm floored. I'm honored," Ascencio said. "Service is one of my passions. I'm honored and privileged to be of service."

Ascencio thanked Realtor Wendy Furth for long ago tapping him on the shoulder, urging him to get President's Award involved.

Gina Uzunyan

"Maybe some saw me in all these years of service," he said. "I'm pleased to see others now following."

In announcing Ascencio's selection, Eric Domeyer, the 2020, Service Award recipient, said that Ascencio "runs circles around the energizer bunny" and can "squeeze more into one day than an average agent does in a week."

Ascencio is a 32-year member of SRAR and a past national president of the National Association of Hispanic Real Estate Professionals.

The Association also honored two professionals who are quick to be of assistance — Barry Judis and John Schroeder. Both were selected as the recipients of the 2021 Affiliate Award.

"What an honor," Schroeder said. "I look forward to staying involved."

Realtor Diane Sydell, the Association's 2021 president,

2021 Realtor of the Year took the opportunity to recognize two "outstanding members who are positive, powerful, productive and always proactive. They are dedicated to our Association.'

Svdell presented Realtors Erika Kauzlarich-Bird and Gina Uzunyan with the President's Award.

"I'm touched for this honor," Kauzlarich-Bird said.

Sydell noted that Uzunyan's leadership brought the Association "the most successful local, state, and federal forums.

"You've created events," she said, "that will continue into the coming years."

BIDEN MOVES TO INCREASE HOUSING SUPPLY

SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

As part of its Build Back Better agenda, the Biden Administration recently announced a series of initiatives intended to produce more affordable housing and extend a lifeline to households paying 50 percent or more of their income to keep a roof overhead.

The following summarizes the announcement that came from the White House on Sept. 1 and some of the extensive measures multiple federal agencies will implement as they await action from Congress.

The large and long-standing gap between the supply and demand of affordable homes for both renters and homeowners makes it harder for families to buy their first home and drives up the cost of rent. Higher housing costs also crowd out other investments families can and should make to improve their lives, such as investments in education.

As supply constraints have intensified, large investors have stepped up their real estate purchases, including of single-family homes in urban and suburban areas.

One out of every six homes purchased in the second quarter of 2021 was acquired by investors, and reports indicate that in some markets, that number is one in four.

Within investor purchases, typically more than 35 percent of purchases are made by investors who own more than ten properties.

Large investor purchases of single-family homes and conversion into rental properties speeds the transition of neighborhoods from homeownership to rental and drives up home prices for lower cost homes, making it harder for aspiring first-time and first-generation homebuyers, among others, to buy a home.

At the same, these purchases are unlikely to meaningfully boost supply in the lowercost portions of the rental market, as investors charge more for rent to recoup higher purchase costs.

President Biden says he is committed to using every tool available in government to produce more affordable housing supply as quickly as possible, and to make supply available to families in need of affordable, quality housing — rather than to large investors.

The Administration announced a number of steps that will create, preserve, and sell to homeowners and non-profits nearly 100,000 additional affordable homes for homeowners and renters over the next three years, with an emphasis on the lower and middle segments of the market.

Specifically, federal agencies will:

• Boost the supply of quality, affordable rental units by relaunching the partnership between the Department of Treasury's Federal Financing Bank and the Department of Housing and Urban Development Risk Sharing Program in order to enable eligible state housing finance agencies to provide low-cost capital for affordable housing development;

• Raising Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's equity cap for the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit, which is the largest federal program for the construction and rehabilitation of affordable rental housing;

• Making more funding available to Community Development Finance Institutions and nonprofit housing groups for affordable housing production under the Capital Magnet Fund.

• Boost the supply of manufactured housing and 2-4 unit properties by expanding financing through Freddie Mac. Along with Fannie Mae's and the Federal Housing Administration's existing policies, these steps will enable more Americans to purchase homes, and increase the availability of rental units throughout the country.

• Make more single-family homes available to individuals, families, and non-profit organizations — rather than large investors — by prioritizing homeownership and limiting the sale to large investors of certain FHA-insured and HUDowned properties, in addition to expanding and creating exclusivity periods in which only governmental entities, owner occupants, and qualified non-profit organizations are able to bid on certain FHA-insured and government-owned properties.

• Work with state and local governments to boost housing supply by leveraging existing federal funds to spur local action, exploring federal levers to help states and local governments reduce exclusionary zoning, and launching learning and listening sessions with local leaders.

Even before the pandemic, 11 million families — or nearly a quarter of renters — paid more than half of their income

Realtors Applaud Affordable Housing Plans

The National Association of Realtors "applauds the administration's new effort to address America's housing supply crisis and to prevent the expansion of corporate landlords at the expense of homeownership," said Charlie Oppler, N.A.R. president.

"Distressed homeowners should have the opportunity to buy-back their homes," Oppler said, "but if not, other worthy homeowners should receive next priority. Affordable homeownership brings a magnitude of benefits to families, communities and our national economy, and now is the time to ensure we continue that support."

The administration's plan to make available 100,000 new homes is just a small fraction of the roughly 6 million units needed to fill the gap in housing supply.

"The current state of the market does not afford many Americans from low- and middle-income households the opportunity to purchase and own a home and continues to hold back the true potential of our market and our overall economy," Oppler said.

California Realtors commend increase in homebuying opportunities

"California's housing supply crisis has lingered for decades and has only been exacerbated by the COVID-19 crisis," said Dave Walsh, president of the California Association of Realtors. "The only way to get out of this crisis will be through bold action taken by all levels of government, and the comprehensive proposal put forward (by the Biden Administration) will help increase homeownership and other housing opportunities, especially for communities of color."

"C.A.R. has long advocated for prospective homebuyers to receive priority "C.A.R. has long advocated for prospective homebuyers to receive priority when a home with a government-backed mortgage goes into default. The Federal Housing Administration, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have a public role and mission to support and promote homeownership," Walsh said. "HUD's action to make more real estate-owned single-family homes available to individuals and families and Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac's extension of their "First Look" program will go a long way to help make more single-family homes available for homebuyers, rather than large investors."

ALL OPTIONS ON THE TABLE IN BID TO BUILD MORE HOUSING

SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

All levels of government — city, county, state, federal — play vital rolls in the ongoing effort to house people living on local streets, manufactured homes and all other building alternatives should be used to increase the housing stock, and few alterations are expected in 1031 tax exchange rules, which play an outsized role in California real estate.

Those opinions were expressed by U.S. Senator Alex Padilla and U.S. Congressman Brad Sherman in a recent Zoom issues forum organized by the Southland Regional Association of Realtors and attended by more than 110 local real estate leaders, owners, and brokers.

With an estimated 40 percent of all 1031 tax exchanges nationwide happening in California, Senator Padilla said that modifying 1031 rules — which allow owners to defer capital gains tax by swapping an existing property for one of equal or greater value — was not near the top of any lists that he had seen. "I'll make it

California,' Padilla said.

Rep. Sherman said he doubted that Congress will pass any measures that will change how people are taxed.

"Nobody wants to eliminate 1031 exchanges just to eliminate it," he said. "There's talk of reform, but I don't think it passes in its current form."

In the search for additional revenue, Congress is more likely, he said, to increase the corporate tax rate or pass measures aimed at international taxation rates.

"Who do you tax if a TV set is designed in Japan, manufactured in Taiwan, and sold in Los Angeles at a profit?" Sherman asked.

Much discussion was devoted to solving the lack of housing throughout California.

a tax g an berty qual alue near lists cen. e it bear appealing and have a one-time impact, but the federal government needs to focus on policy that encourages construction of more homes.

Sherman said use of a tax credit may be

"There are all kinds of proposals, but if you don't build more housing, you don't have more people housed. We need to encourage more construction, then we have to balance maintaining neighborhoods as people expected when they bought their homes and, at the same time, allowing more homes to be built," Sherman said.

Local governments know best what is needed, yet the federal government, with its deep pocket, plays a vital role in setting national policy that encourages construction.

"There are so many underlying issues" when it comes to homelessness, Sen. Padilla said. "Mental health, unemployment ... everybody has to do their part: city, county, state, and federal government."

With that in mind, Sen. Padilla and Rep. Sherman favored extending federal regulations to treat manufactured homes the same as traditionally built housing.

"I think it's time," Padilla said. The quality of today's manufactured homes is such that "you can't tell the difference," Padilla said. "Plus, they may be more affordable and more efficient."

Sherman concurred: "If we're going to encourage housing, we should encourage it — it doesn't matter the manner of construction."

The U.S. Supreme Court ended the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention eviction moratorium on Aug. 26 giving much-needed relief to America's small housing providers facing financial hardship for more than a year.

In a 6-3 ruling, a majority of justices agreed that the stay on the lower court's order finding the CDC's eviction moratorium to be unlawful was no longer justified.

In their order, the justices wrote: "The moratorium has put the applicants, along with millions of landlords across the country, at risk of irreparable harm by depriving them of rent payments with no guarantee of eventual recovery. Despite the CDC's determination that landlords should bear a significant financial cost of the pandemic, many landlords have modest means."

The case was brought by the Georgia and Alabama Associations of Realtors and other property providers, with help from the National Association of Realtors.

In May of this year, U.S. District Judge Dabney Friedrich for the District of Columbia had struck down the ban as unlawful, but she stayed her ruling pending appeal. The case wound up twice before the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals and Supreme Court.

LOAN DEBT STOPS MILLENNIALS FROM BUYING A HOME

BY DIANE SYDELL, PRESIDENT, AND DAVID WALKER SOUTHLAND REGIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

Six out of ten millennials who do not own a home say the burden of student loan debt is delaying their ability to buy a home making them, by far, the most affected population, a recent national poll discovered.

The findings also show that Americans burdened with high student debt see an impact on their daily lives.

They often must choose between investing in their retirement, purchasing a home, getting married, starting a family, or general savings.

"Housing affordability is worsening, leaving future homebuyers with student debt at a severe disadvantage," said Charlie Oppler, president of the National Association of Realtors, which

Among adults who have not paid Among adults who have paid off student loan debt Long-term savings 43% 31% fowards paying off other debts 40% 34% 38% 26% Investments Towards purchase of 24% 13% Towards purchase of 22% 18% 15% Towards a vacation 21% Towards additional education 13% 5% Rent better housing that fits my needs 9% 12% Move out of living with family 7% 9% Other 3% 12%

If you did not have to pay student loans every month, where would you put that additional money?

commissioned and recently released the new poll.

"Younger Americans shouldn't have to choose between education and homeownership," he said.

The new research also uncovers that only 23 percent of student loan debt holders understood the costs of attending college before taking out loans. Moreover, 35 percent of those student loan debt holders did not fully understand their potential for earnings following graduation.

According to the report, 51 percent of all student loan holders say their debt delayed them from purchasing a home. Thirty-six percent of student loan debt holders say student loan debt delayed their decision to move out of a family member's home, a percentage that rises to 52 percent among Black debt holders.

Ultimately, the report shows that 31 percent of millennials and 28 percent of Black student debt holders would use their additional funds to purchase a home in the future with no student loan debt.

"Aside from just purchasing a home, this report finds that more than half of those with student loan debt have delayed some form of major life choice," Oppler said. "Student loan debt isn't just seeping into housing affordability. It's also plaguing other aspects of people's lives."

To address the growing debt burden, NAR supports a multi-pronged approach. Financial education should be expanded to aid students as they face decisions about financing their education, while aid programs should be simplified. For those who hold debt, opportunities to consolidate and be expanded to aid students as they face decisions about financing their refinance debt at lower rates will help debt holders lower monthly debt payments, make large purchases, and make wise life choices. Finally, Realtors favor expanding tax preferences for employers who assist employees with their student debt as well as tax forgiveness for debt holders who have their debt forgiven or paid off by their examining research during the past eight years to gauge the impact of student loan debt on future homebuyers. The data pattern now affirms that student loan debt is one of the most significant barriers standing between a potential buyer and the ability to purchase a home. The findings from the new poll build on last year's annual survey of successful homebuyers, "Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers," which showed that student loan debt was the most significant factor delaying their ability to save among buyers who had difficulty saving for a down payment. This research found Black homebuyers were more than twice as likely to have student debt than White homebuyers, with a median amount of $10,000 more than White buvers.

The "Impact of Student Loan Debt" poll was modeled off NAR reports from 2016 and 2017, with a narrower scope.

The research themes are comparable, but the newest report considers the current federal government stimulus package and how the COVID-19 pandemic has affected debt in our country.
